Wali Lundy

RB, Virginia

War Room analysis

Strengths: Is a powerful runner who runs low with vision to find cutback lanes. Shows body control. Excels as an inside runner who can push the pile on short-yardage and goal-line situations. Is surprisingly quick and elusive. As a receiver, is a reliable dump-off option. Is solid in pass protection.

Weaknesses: Lacks the elite speed and burst to get to the corner. Durability is an issue. Wore down late in recent seasons, and battled injuries early in 2005. Has had fumbling problems. Is not a natural pass catcher.

Bottom line: Lundy performs better than his measurable skills would indicate. His game is suited to a one-cut, downhill rushing attack. He lacks explosiveness or receiving skills but excels in short-yardage situations. He had a slight speed improvement during his workouts and projects as a late fourth-round selection.

Dan Pompei analysis

Was a productive college player for four years and had a great Combine workout. Has a compact running style. Excels between the tackles. Lacks burst in open field. Vision could be better.

No. 13 on Pompei's RB rankings

Correspondent Analysis

A competent rusher who seldom loses the ball, Lundy was hampered most of last season by a bum ankle. He will compete with Vernand Morency for the top rusher job with the Texans. -- Megan Manfull
