SPRING UPDATE

Virginia exited spring practice without settling its starting quarterback issue. Senior Tim Sherman and redshirt sophomore Aaron Brooks battled through the drills, but coach George Welsh said the race will continue into the fall and possibly a couple of games into the season.

◆ The Cavaliers were struck by a rash of injuries during the spring and once scrimmaged without any scholarship players at the wide receiver positions. Virginia's offensive line was also decimated by injuries in the spring, limiting the development of a position that Welsh says is the key to the team in 1996.

◆ Virginia plans on pushing senior tailback Tiki Barber for the Heisman Trophy this fall and Welsh gives his blessings to the school's record-breaking scatback, who will be best remembered for long touchdown runs against Florida State and Michigan. "I think he deserves preseason publicity," Welsh said of Barber. "If the offense helps him, (the Heisman) is a possibility. We're still going to sub for him and not wait until the second half. If we're in the one-back set, he'll be the back and he may be returning punts again because he's the best we've got."

◆ Tiki's twin brother, junior cornerback Ronde Barber, missed some of the spring with a freak injury to his right arm. Ronde required surgery to repair a torn ligament around his elbow. There was also some muscle damage. Barber missed the spring game because of the injury, which was expected to take two months to heal.

◆ One of the major objectives of the spring was to find players who could stabilize Virginia's long-snapping situations for punts, an area that haunted the Cavaliers throughout 1995. Redshirt freshmen Dillon Taylor and John St. Clair reportedly dished out strikes to All-American punter Will Brice 90 percent of the time during the spring drills.

◆ Tiki Barber and defensive tackle Todd White were voted by their teammates as captains of the '96 team.
